

Freiston Shore

Explore Lincolnshire's beautiful wilderness at Freiston Shore, a wildlife reserve on the east coast overlooking The Wash - the country's most important estuary supporting an incredible amount of natural wildlife.

As well as the glorious wet grassland stretching as far as the eye can see, Freiston Shore provides visitors with the space to relax and immerse themselves in nature, making it the ideal spot whether you're an avid bird watcher, or just looking for a scenic place to walk and take a break.

Bird Watching

The area is a safe haven for a variety of rare species of birds which can be viewed across the 680 acres of picturesque marshland and salt lagoons.

You may also be able to glimpse rare birds, such as red-breasted mergansers. With the reserve's accessible viewing platforms, you can marvel at breath-taking views of waterbirds on the 15-acre protected saline lagoon, which offers a safe breeding ground to rare species.

Through the seasons

Freiston Shore Nature Reserve is a glorious place to explore as the seasons change. Each season brings around new wildlife, whether it's the avocets in the spring or the golden plovers in the winter, there's plenty of stunning wildlife to see all year round.

What can I expect?

Freiston Shore Nature Reserve is open to the public at all times with a 20-space car park on site. The reserve is accessible through all-weather paths, suitable for pushchairs.

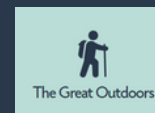

There are no on-site toilets or cafe facilities at this reserve.

Getting here

Freiston Shore RSPB Nature Reserve is located at PE22 0LZ, the car park can be accessed from Shore Road.

boston-england.co.uk

boston-england.co.uk

Freiston Shore

Park Map

Explore and discover Boston's stunning green spaces

Additional Parking

Drove Road

Sea Bank

Shore Road

We'll Meet Again: WW2 Museum

Bird Hide

Bird Hide

- Footpath
- Car park
- Picnic bench
- Viewpoint
- WW2 Coastal Defences

200 metres

Contains OpenStreetMap.org data © OpenStreetMap contributors, CC-BY-SA.